

Data Mining to Support MOVES

Eugene Tierney
Tierney.Gene@epamail.epa.gov

September 29, 2009

Abstract

EPA undertook a massive review of existing data sources to generate new emission factor data for the MOVES model. The MOVES model relies on a wide variety of data sources and employs them in an entirely new way compared with the MOBILE series of models. This paper discusses the data that EPA considered, rejected and used to construct the new model as well as the new approaches taken in this modeling regime.